On the 1st of June 2017 Herman Ottó Institute Nonprofit Ltd. and IFKA Public Benefit Nonprofit Ltd. participated at a conference called Circular Hungary 2017 organized by the Circular Economy Association and Ceeweb Association for Biodiversity.

The accentuated topic of the conference was the circular economy and the discussion about economical, business and innovation circumstances. National and international experts held presentations on the conference where they put on display the functioning of circular economy in a company environment, the experience of reuse in a different way, and the creation of new business possibilities in the course of parallel workshops.

The basis of circular economy is cooperation, as many presenters highlighted, to achieve the goals of circular economy the concerned ministries should cooperate in an effective way and the economic sector should be drawn into the process.

At our exhibition stand we promoted the TRIS-Transition Regions into Industrial Symbiosis- project which is based on the aims of circular economy, furthermore we displayed the publications and booklets prepared by our colleagues incorporating all the activities of our Institute.
